Future Media Architects

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Future Media Architects (FMA) is an internet development company which was launched in 2002.

The main purpose of the company is to develop internet websites and hence started to acquire domain names. However, most of its domain names are currently parked. It began acquiring domain names in 2000, shortly after the dot-com bubble, 2 years later it was officially announced as a company.

The company's inventory of domain names was estimated to be more than 120,000 domain names. It is known for rejecting all offers to buy any of its domain names.

It purchased a major ICANN-approved domain name registrar which was located on i.net (<http://www.i.net/>) (currently offline).

In 2002 one of FMA's major websites, mp3.tv (<http://www.mp3.tv/>), sponsored Italy's national championship Ferrari racing team^[1].

About Us

OXIDE[®] is brought to you by FMA

Future Media Architects (FMA) is an Internet development company with a global presence. We develop our own Internet properties, Internet Portals and Technology. We do not develop for third parties.

We are a true Internet entity pioneering the innovations of tomorrow's web.

OXIDE[®] uses innovative meta-search technology to search the Internet. OXIDE[®] is simply the easiest way to find better search results from more of the Web.

Get Better Results, Easier

Through this meta-search technology, OXIDE[®] allows you to search the Internet's top search engines, including Google, Yahoo, Ask Jeeves, About, FindWhat, LookSmart, and many more, all through the same engine.

With one single click, OXIDE[®] combines the best results from the pool of the best search engines - instead of results from just one single source. OXIDE[®] also makes it easy to refine your search so you can find the most meaningful results right away.

What's so great about metasearch? Here's a quick lesson to get you up to speed

Metasearch searches multiple engines - This means that instead of getting the best results one search engine has to offer, you'll be getting the best combined results from a variety of engines, and not just any engines, but industry leading engines like Google, Yahoo, Ask Jeeves, About and LookSmart.

Metasearch covers more of the Web - Using more search engines means a better overall coverage of the Web. Does it sound too obvious? In fact, an independent search engine expert has agreed, stating that our metasearch technology can search 50% more of the Web than any single search engine.*

Metasearch is easy to use - Better results and more coverage of the Web is great - but not if you need an advanced degree to make it work. The great results will take care of themselves! Search more engines, get the best results from more of the Web and do it all easily. That's what metasearch is all about!

Disclaimer: Greg Nottas, an independent search engine expert, verified our methodology and validated that our metasearch technology can retrieve 50% or more additional results.
